Introduction

Plastic is everywhere today. People use it endlessly to gain their comfort. However, no one realises how much damage our planet is doing. We need to be aware of the consequences to prevent plastic contamination. Children should be taught from an early age to avoid using plastic. Similarly, adults should examine the same. In addition, the government must take strong measures to stop plastic pollution before it is too late.

Increased Plastic Pollution

One of the most extensively utilised materials is plastic. It is seen everywhere these days, from supermarkets to ordinary homes. Why is that? Why is the use of plastic rising rather than declining? The main reason is that plastic is quite affordable. It costs less than other methods such as paper and cloth. Second, it is straightforward to use. Plastic can be used for almost any liquid or solid. Moreover, it comes in many forms that we can easily shape.

In addition, we see that plastic is a non-perishable material. It never leaves the face of the Earth. We cannot dispose of plastic in the ground or water; it lasts forever. Therefore, the increased use of plastic means more plastic will not melt. Thus, outbreaks of plastic pollution occur at high speeds.

Impact of Plastic Pollution

Plastic pollution affects the whole world, including humans, wildlife, and aquatic animals. It spreads like an incurable disease. We should all be aware of the harmful effects on our lives to avoid them as soon as possible.

Plastic pollutes our water. Each year, tons of plastic are thrown into the sea. Since plastic is insoluble, it stays in the water and thus impairs its cleanliness. This means we will not be left with clean water in the years to come.

In addition, plastic pollutes our country. When people dispose of plastic waste in landfills, the soil is damaged. It destroys soil fertility. In addition, various parasites accumulate in the area, causing deadly diseases.

Most importantly, plastic contamination damages marine life. Plastic water waste is accidentally made as food for aquatic animals. They ate it and eventually died. For example, the dolphin died due to a plastic ring attached to its mouth. Because of this, he could not open his mouth, and he starved to death. Thus, we see how innocent animals die due to plastic contamination.

In short, we see how plastic pollution pollutes the lives of everyone on Earth. To prevent it, we must take serious measures. We should use cloth bags and paper bags instead of plastic bags. If we buy plastic, we have to use it again. We should avoid drinking bottled water, which significantly impacts plastic contamination. The government must prohibit plastic use. All of this can prevent plastic contamination to a large extent.
