Essay on My Ambition in Life

Every human being has an ambition. A man without a goal is like a ship without a rudder.

Different people have different tastes and likings. Hence, they have different ambitions. Some want to become a doctor, others want to be an engineer.

My father and mother both are teachers. So, I have experience of a teacher's life. A teacher is a respectable man. He is a builder of the character of a child or a person. The teacher is the builder of a nation. When a child enters the gate of life, he comes across a teacher. The teacher makes the future of others. He has a respectable position in society. I am very much impressed by a teacher's life. So, I have the ambition of becoming a teacher.

It is a noble profession. A teacher commands great respect in society. He is a nation-builder. He looks after the mental, moral and physical developments of his pupils. He teaches them discipline, good manners, and obedience. He makes them polite, well-behaved, and gentle. He builds their character and helps them to become good citizens. That is why I would like to be a teacher.
