

Essay on Tsunami 2004, 250-300 words

Essay on tsunami 2004: Tsunami is most dreadful of all-natural calamities. It means terrible sea-shore waves. Whenever Tsunami happens there is a lot of destruction at the ports and nearby areas. Tsunamis are to happen from time to time. Sometimes they are destructive and other times not so.

A tsunami happens due to the earthquake. Whenever an earthquake happens deep inside the sea or at the ports then sea-waves arise in a terrible way. They are very destructive. Man cannot fore-cost its happening. We have to face many types of ruins at the time of the Tsunami.

On December 24, 2004, India. South Asia and South East Asia faced a very terrible Tsunami. It was so terrible inside the sea that Sri Lanka and Indian coastal areas faced deadly Destruction. Lakhs of people died many more affected. Wounded people are countless in that tragedy. We are helpless for those who are died. But the whole world is open-heartedly providing relief to the survivors of the Tsunami. Many heads of states, organization and departments are heading towards the rebuilding process of the victims we should help them by providing them shelter, food, and education etc.

The destruction in tsunami 2004 has proved that disaster management in India is too poor to facing natural calamities like a tsunami. It is needed. It is the need of this age to develop a powerful system to guess and to forecast the natural calamities. If we have proper and adequate measures then we can prevent the mass loss of lives and property. With the help of Japan and British technology Indian Met-depth. Is developing fore-telling measures in this regard. We have a wide range of coastal areas in India. So it is the demand for time to be well-equipped with the latest technology.